Andrew Lock - Manaslu and Lhotse

In 2002 Andrew Lock summited Manaslu and Lhotse. His climb of Manaslu was a first Australian ascent and Lhotse was a solo ascent. This was the third time that Andrew had reached the summit of two 8000m peaks in the same season, a feat only achieved by a small handful of the world's best climbers.

Andrew is Australia's most accomplished high altitude mountaineer. He has climbed eleven of the world's fourteen 8000m peaks. Of these eleven, four were first Australian ascents and three were climbed solo.

Come and hear Andrew talk about climbing these two 8000ers in one season while viewing his amazing images from Manaslu and Lhotse.
